

Retraction notice: Analyzing how COVID-19 moderates the relationship between organizational learning capabilities, technological innovation, supply chain management and enterprise performance in the automobile industry

The publisher of Business Process Management Journal wishes to retract the Samera Nazir, Saqib Mehmood, Li Zhaolei, Zarish Nazir, Sana Nazir; Analyzing how COVID-19 moderates the relationship between organizational learning capabilities, technological innovation, supply chain management and enterprise performance in the automobile industry. Business Process Management Journal 29 October 2024; 30 (6): 2184–2209. <https://doi.org/10.1108/BPMJ-02-2024-0116>. It has come to our attention that there are significant concerns regarding the authorship and the source of this article. The authors failed to provide a satisfactory explanation to these concerns. As part of the investigation, the authors were also requested to provide a copy of the dataset so that the editorial team could verify the findings. The authors failed to respond to this request with the full dataset. As a result, the findings of the article cannot be relied upon. The decision to retract has been informed by COPE's guidelines on retractions and Emerald's publishing ethics. Emerald's authorship policy guidelines make it clear that authorship is a fundamental aspect of transparency in the publication process and ensures accountability and responsibility for reported research. The authors would like to note that they disagree with the content of this notice. The publisher of the journal sincerely apologizes to the readers.

